GLOCAL HIGH YIELD EURO BONDS FUND

FACTSHEET JUNE 2024

Macroeconomic Update

June was a strong month for fixed income investors, with 89% of Investment Grade bonds and 70% of High Yield bonds ending the month positive.

During this period, the UST Yield Curve experienced a downward shift, decreasing by 20 bps in the mid-section and 10 bps in the long section, following the release of weaker macroeconomic data in the U.S.

Notably, the unemployment rate increased to 4% in May, the highest level since January 2022, while the core inflation rate dropped by 10 bps month-on-month to 0.2%.

The Federal Reserve met on June 12 and decided to leave interest rates unchanged. Market expectations now indicate a 65% probability of a rate cut in September, as reflected in the futures market.

Disclaimer

The data, views and forecasts in this document is for information purposes only and shall not be regarded as an offer, solicitation or recommendation for an investment. Past performance is no guarantee of future results. All investments involve risks including the risk of possible loss of principal. The market value of a Fund's portfolio may decline as a result of a number of factors, including adverse economic and market conditions, prospects of securities in the portfolio, changing interest rates, and real or perceived adverse competitive industry conditions. The Fund invests in securities and other investments that may be illiquid, which hold the risk that the securities will not be able to be sold at the time desired by the Fund. The Armenian securities markets have substantially less trading volume than the securities markets of OECD countries. Additionally, the capitalization of the Armenian securities markets is highly concentrated. This combination of lower volume and greater concentration in the Armenian securities markets may create a risk of greater price volatility than in the securities markets of developed economies. The views and forecasts contained herein are those of the GLOCAL team based on information that they believe to be reliable. These opinions may change over time.
