

GLOCAL UNIVERSE FUND

FACTSHEET

NOVEMBER 2024

Macroeconomic Update

November was a strong month for all constituents of the fund's portfolio. The sharp rise in post-election UST yields reversed by the end of the month bringing longer duration Treasuries to green territory.

October's macro data provided the Federal Reserve with room to cut interest rates by 25 basis points at its first post-election meeting, held November 7. Economic indicators further eased investor concerns about a potential recession. November PMI significantly exceeded expectations, unemployment declined, and annual inflation aligned with forecasts at 3.3%.

The equity exposure performed well on Trump's expected policies.

Risk-on sentiment brought massive gains to crypto with ETH gaining more than 40%. While we welcomed the gains, a significant portion of the fund's portfolio was converted to assets with minimal volatility.

Disclaimer

The data, views and forecasts in this document is for information purposes only and shall not be regarded as an offer, solicitation or recommendation for an investment. Past performance is no guarantee of future results. All investments involve risks including the risk of possible loss of principal. The market value of a Fund's portfolio may decline as a result of a number of factors, including adverse economic and market conditions, prospects of securities in the portfolio, changing interest rates, and real or perceived adverse competitive industry conditions. The Fund invests in securities and other investments that may be illiquid, which hold the risk that the securities will not be able to be sold at the time desired by the Fund. The Armenian securities markets have substantially less trading volume than the securities markets of OECD countries. Additionally, the capitalization of the Armenian securities markets is highly concentrated. This combination of lower volume and greater concentration in the Armenian securities markets may create a risk of greater price volatility than in the securities markets of developed economies. The views and forecasts contained herein are those of the GLOCAL team based on information that they believe to be reliable. These opinions may change over time.
