FACTSHEET

AUGUST 2024

Macroeconomic Update

The major U.S. indices finished August in positive territory, though investor confidence and bullish sentiment driven by the AI rally have softened.

The highlight of the month was Nvidia's earnings report, which exceeded expectations; however, concerns emerged about the sustainability of its accelerated revenue growth. As a result, Nvidia shares declined by 10%, contributing to a drop in the Nasdaq 100 and S&P 500 indices.

Gold once again reached historic highs, climbing to $2,530 per troy ounce. In contrast, cryptocurrencies, led by Bitcoin, had a challenging month, closing in negative territory. Historically, price effects from Bitcoin's halving are observed six months afterward, so crypto enthusiasts remain optimistic about potential gains within the coming quarters.

August also saw a positive shift in recession expectations, driven by better-than-expected Q2 economic growth data. Additionally, with inflation cooling, markets are confident the Federal Reserve will implement at least one 25-basis-point rate cut, expecting a total of 100 bps cut by the end of the year.

The data, views and forecasts in this document is for information purposes only and shall not be regarded as an offer, solicitation or recommendation for an investment. Past performance is no guarantee of future results. All investments involve risks including the risk of possible loss of principal. The market value of a Fund's portfolio may decline as a result of a number of factors, including adverse economic and market conditions, prospects of securities in the portfolio, changing interest rates, and real or perceived adverse competitive industry conditions. The Fund invests in securities and other investments that may be illiquid, which hold the risk that the securities will not be able to be sold at the time desired by the Fund. The Armenian securities markets have substantially less trading volume than the securities markets of OECD countries. Additionally, the capitalization of the Armenian securities markets is highly concentrated. This combination of lower volume and greater concentration in the Armenian securities markets may create a risk of greater price volatility than in the securities markets of developed economies.
